

Algorithm design (title) + CALLABLE UNITS

• ~~Start the audio a little delay~~ Delay some seconds the audio because I feel that you start the voice too the voice appear too sudden and the intro about the video is not in context.

• Consider changing the intro (explain the purpose of the video, the relevance in this section). or instead change the title to "Algorithm design: callable units."

• 1:15 → consider writing in the slide the terms used to refer to the algorithmic sections. I think it could be more clarifying and catch the attention of audience if what is said is appearing in the slide.

• 2:00 → stress orally here that all callable units are functions or procedures.

• Consider include in this slide the "phrase": Both procedures and functions are callable units of instructions.

for clarifying purposes consider ~~explaining~~ including all the common features of the callable units till 2:11 and don't get back to here later in the video.

After 2:11 it's only the differences that are being dealt of. with. ? → I think I say they are these - some where?

• 6:28 → Try to emphasize orally the link between slides. such as,

(note that) all the callable units' considered so far (...)

6:40 (But) if a callable unit is allowed to use parameters.

• 8:10 → orally content must first consider to remove the first phrase of the slide (it's already clarified in the terminology slides if you considered to take my suggestion)

• 9:00 → Consider clarify the "shirt cuff" explanation (at least I didn't get it).

• 8:46 → Consider change the phrase "Marvellous, except... it could be useless if no one appeared to be listening when the (...) in the slide."

• About the 9:45 slide ("Implementation"), I get your stimulate purpose but you have to be cautious if you want to ~~erase~~ critical thinking but instead you get an audience frustrated, thinking they we're losing their time watching the video, because in the end, it's the practical goal that they are achieving when attending training courses. I would stick with the content of the slide till 10:30. I would omit the 2 last phrases. (in the slide, you can say it if you think you must.)
